VALLIANT'S EXPENSES.

As stated, Judge Valliant had the largest expense account. It was $1,598.88. Of this sum, $1,000 went to the State Committee, and the remainder was expended in small sums for hotel tills, printing, postage, stenographer's work and many similar items which most of the other candidates do not include in their statements.

The campaign cost Joe P. Rice $209.50, he being second only to Judge Valliant. Mr. Rice gave the State Committee $200, $50 was paid for headquarters during the convention at Springheid; $50 went for cigars; $25 for badges and flags and the remainder for small incidental expenses.

Edward Higbee, Republican nominee for Judge of the Supreme Court, certifies that he paid out $132.90 during the campaign. Of this sum, $125 went to the State Committee and the rest was expended for literature, postage, etc.

Judge James D. Fox. Democratic candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court, gave the State Committee $750, expended $10 for headquarters during the convention, credits $25 to badges and $2.40 for cards, making a total expenditure of $73.40.

The campaign cost Andrew Grassley, Prohibition candidate for Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner, but $41.80. This is made up of small items, the largest being an outlay of $11.30 for literature.

James Nevill, Republican nominee for Judge of the St. Lo. is Court of Appeals, certifies under oat that "he did not, directly or indirectly, use any money, property or valuable thing whatsoever to further his chances of election." etc.

most unselfish, most extraordinary kind, a widow for a widow, a daughter-in-law for a mother-in-law, a Moabitess for a Jewess. It endured the severest test and made the largest possible sacrifice. Whence came that love? What caused it to spring up in the heart of one who had been raised outside the household of faith, who had worshiped idols? Was it a product of wedded life? Did Chillon, the lamented husband, carry into his home such reverence for God and mother as to win his wife? Was Naomi so beautiful and loving as to draw out these emotions like the tendrils of the vine? Did divine grace work in this woman's heart? Or was the a beautiful flower appearing to show the rarely possible of the heathen world? Whatever the origin it is worthy to a place in the inspired Book. (I John iv. 7, 8)

Washington, Nov. 28.—Representative Rucker of Missouri to-day called on Acting Supervising Architect Kemper to register complaint against the selection of the new Post Office site at Moberly by the Government agent C. L. Blanton, a few months ago. Mr. Rucker requested an interview with that gentleman, but was informed by Architect Kemper that Agent Blanton was at present detailed to Pennsylvania, and that the department expected his return Monday. Mr. Rucker promised to return on that day and press his complaint. The department officials, further than to say that there was some dispute as to the location of the Post-Office site refused to discuss the subject.
